As Gen. William T. Sherman’s Union army entered North Carolina in March 1865, Confederate Gen. Joseph E. Johnston assembled a makeshift army at the eleventh hour. Johnston, with elements of the Army of Tennessee and other forces, attacked the Federal Left Wing at Bentonville, in an effort to delay Sherman’s march toward Goldsboro.